

A close-up photograph of a piece of Douglas fir wood. The wood grain is clearly visible, showing a mix of light tan and pale brown tones with subtle variations in texture and color. The grain runs horizontally across the frame. There are some small, darker spots and variations in the wood's surface, characteristic of natural wood.

Douglas fir (untreated)